Dear Colonel Bratton:

Please accept my apologies for not having furnished you with the enclosed brief report on my visit to Japan prior to this date. During the short time available after I learned that you would like such a report, no clerical personnel who could handle classified information was on duty in the Tokyo office, and I have just today returned to my office in Washington.

I enjoyed my visit to Japan very much indeed and certainly think that it was very much worthwhile for me as well as for the agency. Again please let me thank you most sincerely for your many courtesies which enabled me to make the most of my brief visit.

I wish to assure you again that any suggestions you may have at any time as to how we might improve our operations in Tokyo would be most welcome.

Sincerely,

L. K. WHITE
